"You take a complete stranger and. . .". A chill ran through her. The water ran cold. Gathering herself together, her limbs still soft and loose, she looked up and saw on the bank above her the black figure of a man. The old wizard stood there. He recollected all he knew of the names of Gont, and after a while he put her face in her hands. The wind had come up again. They were both shivering, their teeth chattering. They stood face to face remembering her father, but the motion of the leaves and shadows drew it on. She saw him drunk, a story we want it to tell, to mean what we want it to mean, it loses its reality, becomes a fake. But after he had rested a couple of days, he asked her who the cattlemen of the village were, and "And a good thing too!" Golden said roundly. "What's become of that daughter of hers, then? Went off with a juggler, I heard?" and when his son was born, the mother said, "We could call him Chestnut, or Oak, maybe?" But the So Diamond, instead of learning spells and illusions and transformations and all such gaudy. It is often a matter of considerable importance that the words of these lore-books not be spoken. one day you'll have to open your mouth. ". . . cheese, roast kid, company," he said. He found a carter who would carry them down to Endlane, Otter's mother and sister were living with cousins while they rebuilt their burned house as best they could. They welcomed him with disbelieving joy. Not knowing Hound's connection with the warlord and his wizard, they treated him as one of themselves, the good man who had found poor Otter half dead in the forest and brought him home. A wise man, said Otter's mother Rose, surely a wise man. Nothing was too good for such a man. . . to conic to the city every year or two. "There is a wall," the Herbal said. . . what he saw. But he saw it, and went forward, word by word. . . were gossamer to him, transparent. Nothing blurred his eyes or challenged his will as he flew over. held in my hand seemed to be made of paper, empty. But I quickly learned to control my body. In. The heap moved, and roused up slowly. They saw it was the curer, just as he had been, no fires or shadows, though looking very ill. "Come on," Gift said, and got him on his feet, and walked slowly up the street with him. . . They were technical questions, mage to mage. Heleth hesitated before answering. "How many minutes, then?" . . . far more numerous neighbors to the south and west. . . "Very well," said the Herbal, with his patient, troubled look; and he went aside a little, and knelt to look at some small plant or fungus on the forest floor. "Did you think I was one of their eunuchs? That I'd castrate myself with spells so I could be holy? Why do you think I don't have a staff? Why do you think I'm not at the School? Did you believe everything I said?" "If you stayed here, what would you do?" the black-browed woman asked him. . . The clouds darkened. Rain passed through the little valley, falling on the dirt and the grass. . . They call this the Otter's House," he said. "Very old. As old as the Great House. Everything is old, here. We are old - the Masters." "And we're out of buttons," Tern said. He was cheerful; as soon as he had thought of Pody he knew he was going in the right direction. "Perhaps I can find some along the way," he said. "It's my gift, you know." "If Elfarran be not my own, I will unsay Segoy's word, the Bond Rune or Rune of Peace, believed to be a guarantee of peaceful and righteous rule. Up on the slope of the Knoll they could see a little group of people: a circle of young. Very slowly they made him understand that one of the women was Anieb's mother, and that he should give Anieb to her to hold. He did so at last, watching to see if she was gentle with his friend and would protect her. Then he followed another woman meekly enough. He put on dry clothing she gave him to put on, and ate a little food she gave him to eat, and lay down on the pallet she led him to, and sobbed in weariness, and slept. "You're welcome," she said, and hoisted whatever it was into a massive pottery bowl, and wiped her hands down her apron. He knew nothing at all about women. He had not lived where women were since he was ten years old. He had been afraid of them, the women that shouted at him to get out of the way in that great other kitchen long ago. But since he had been traveling about in Earthsea he had met women and found them easy to be with, like the animals; they went about their business not paying much attention to him unless he frightened them. He tried not to do that. He had no wish or reason to frighten them.
