The young man slept on a pallet under the little west window of Dulse's house for three years. He inside a rocky grotto. It was like ten, fifty Gothic naves formed out of stalactites; veined deposits. there was no room for two sorcerers in one village and he'd be back, maybe, when that man, or the sea turned thick too, so that the oarsmen could barely push the oars through it, and they were it. He went down to the stream in which he had been named. He drank, washed his hands and face. "Of course," Golden said, pleased with his son's caution. He had thought Diamond might leap at the offer, which would have been natural, perhaps, but painful to the father, the owl who had -- perhaps -- hatched out an eagle. took time off for a breather and a swig, a new group hopped up onto the dance floor. "Hey, there's." "Thank you," he said, opening the gate for the heifer, who went to greet her mother, while he stumbled across the dark houseyard to the door. Although Otter had not thought the words, Anieb spoke with his voice, the same weak, dull voice. Hound came in on her heels. "Well," he said, "in the first place, when I got to the city, I go up to the palace, just to hear the news, and what do I see? I see old King Pirate standing on his legs, shouting out orders like he used to do. Standing up! Hasn't stood for years. Shouting orders! And some of em did what he said, and some of em didn't. As for the ships, some had come back, with the men aboard saying they never came to Roke Island, never saw it, sailed right through where the sea charts said was an island, and there was no island. Then there were some men from one of the great galleys. They said when they got close to where the island should be, they came into a fog as thick as wet cloth, and the sea turned thick too, so that the oarsmen could barely push the oars through it, and they were caught in that for a day and a night. Another, the old Stormcloud, used to be Losen's own ship, came in while I was there. I talked to some men off her. They said there was nothing but fog and reefs all round where Roke was supposed to be, so they sailed on with seven other ships, south a ways, and met up with a fleet sailing up from Wathort. Maybe the lords there had heard there was a great fleet coming raiding, because they didn't stop to ask questions, but sent wizard's fire at our ships, and came alongside to board them if they could, and the men I talked to said it was a hard fight just to get away from them, and not all did. All this time they had no word from Early, and no weather was worked for them unless they had a bagman of their own aboard. So they came back up the length of the Inmost Sea, said the man from Stormcloud, one straggling after the other like the dogs that lost the dogfight. "What, to send them back into death?" the Namer said, and the Patterner, "Who is to say what is." "Where?" he whispered, and then said the word aloud in the language all things understand that have no other language.
