"I think, if you stayed, Heleth, we could talk." "I have work here," he said..realm-for meeting and breeding, and had seldom even been seen by most of the islanders. Naturally.The poem begins with the best known and most cherished love story in the Archipelago, that of Morred and Elfarran. In the third year of his reign, the young king went south to the largest island of the Archipelago, Havnor, to settle disputes among the city-states there. Returning in his "oarless longship," he came to the island Solea and there saw Elfarran, the Islewoman or Lady of Solea, "in the orchards in the spring." He did not continue on to Enlad, but stayed with Elfarran. To pledge his troth he gave her a silver bracelet or arm ring, the treasure of his family, on which was engraved a unique and powerful True Rune. Ivory never noticed that the girl was ailing, nor the pear trees, nor the vines. He kept himself. He had just obtained, and was vastly proud of, an arcane treatise from Way concerning quicksilver. . . had come close enough to know that it was surrounded by prisoning spells that would sting and. "Thank you," I said, "not for me. . .". I went around the lake. The colossus seemed to lead me with its motionless, luminous. Soon, he thought now, he would not need one. But in the dark years, wizards sold their skills to the highest bidder, pitting their powers. . . that gleamed like armor. . . They brought him one boy. The other had jumped from the ship, crossing Havnor Bay, and been killed by a crossbow quarrel. The boy they brought was in such a paroxysm of terror that even Early was disgusted by him. How could he frighten a creature already blind and beshatten with fear? He set a binding spell on the boy that held him upright and immobile as a stone statue, and left him so for a night and a day. Now and then he talked to the statue, telling it that it was a clever lad and might make a good prentice, here in the palace. Maybe he could go to Roke after all, for Early was thinking of going to Roke, to meet with the mages there. . . wizard. . . When he added that little questioning "eh?" or "neh?" to the end of what had seemed a statement it always took her by surprise. She said nothing. . . He went on to the foot of the street. It opened into a small market square. People were gathered there, not many of them. They were not buying or selling. There were no booths or stalls set up. They were waiting for him. . .
